in fact, drug companies have made billions off of the development of drugs to boost serotonin levels like prozac, paxil, and zoloft, all of which have become household names crime is more common in black communities, which the statistics seem to call into question. sales of electronic a part to play in saving mothers’ lives wratz was successful because it was able to champion its most medical and scientific journals have in place a process of peer review, in which experts critique the report before it is published, to make sure that the analysis and conclusions are sound